Memorial

Yaye Hamidou Badjo
RW33*First Place*

This is dedicated for any person who lost someone who was close to him. I mean by close, your relatives or best friends. I am going to share with you the history of one of my uncles who passed away. I was so close to him. Not to abuse, but I can tell you that I was closer to him than his own children. My uncle was a tall person; he had dark skin with dark short hair. Also, he wore glasses when he read. He liked the environment because my uncle was an engineer in environment. On Saturdays, he went to the garden. I sometimes went with him. One of his characteristics was, he liked joking people without making differences, if you were his nephew or not. Also, he had one of his laughs which alone had the secret. Thus, all his co-workers admired him. He did not joke with working. When I had some disagreements with my parents, I referred to him to find a solution. With him, Impossible did not exist; he just made some changes in your choices. Also, I remember one of his sayings: be patient and don't give up. I cannot release that he passed away. I want to tell him that I am on the way to make my dreams true, but I do not know how to do so. All in all, being separated from someone forever, particularly one who you like a lot, is very difficult. And also you must pray for them so that they have peace and tranquility in the nearness of God. I hope that your soul rests in peace, uncle. Amen

Killeria in Gainesville

Jisette Letelier
RW52*Second Place*

It was a time in Gainesville, a woman called Killeria used to live at SW 16th Avenue. This woman was very weird. She never spoke to her neighbors and always kept her doors and windows closed. Moreover, she never cleaned her yard; therefore, a lot of weeds grew up and some rare ugly black birds had been living there for a while.

In her neighborhood, people usually whispered that sometimes, she used to go outside but more often, in the afternoon. When they saw her, she was always wearing a red dress. Apparently, she is beautiful and likes wearing jewelry. However, when she went out, she never ate outside and she loved going to Starbucks to keep watching people.

What the people did not know is that Killeria did not really like watching all people; actually, she enjoyed reading people's brain. Why? Here is the big secret. . . . However, the history which follows should help us to find out what happened. In the summer of 2013, in just five days, three young guys were missing in the community. Their parents had been looking for them everywhere, but they never found them.

Everyone was worried and afraid because it was the first time that this event happened in the community. Nevertheless, only Killeria seemed quiet. She had been doing her chores as usual. . . . according to her behavior; the neighbors began to suspect her as a kidnapper. Suddenly, a group of the community member decided to report that to the police department and asked for an investigation about this woman. As result, the police did not reveal anything wrong, so the neighbors decided to act by themselves. On the evening of a Friday thirteenth, they took Killeria by force in the national park and came with her to her house. Despite all the threats of the neighbors, she never said anything and still stayed quiet. The discovery that they made in the house was unbelievable: snakes, vultures, human skeleton, a human skull and a big axe covered of fresh blood. . . . It was horrible!

The witnesses' neighbors were horrified and afraid; when they tried to call the police, they could not because Killeria had a power which gives her the ability to control the mind of people automatically when they enter her house! However, in contrast to the policemen, she gave to the neighbors the possibility to see the truth but they could not do anything against that. They were literally hypnotized and probably could never leave the house. Killeria was excited about what happened and before she made her final point, she decided to share her true life with her guests. In fact, she was not human but an extraterrestrial. She is a brabloodphage which means she only eats human hearts and brains. As juice, she drinks fresh human blood!

However, she is really picky in the choice of her food; according to her, she only eats people with beautiful brains which mean young smart people without any brain twist; this is her secret. . . . thus, 99% of her neighbors were spared for this reason.

Nevertheless, they lost their minds forever forgot all about this adventure; even the other neighbors who did not go in her house could not remember what happened. One year ago, she moved to another city; however, what she doesn't know is somewhere in the SW 16th Avenue, one of her neighbor never forgets this event because he was strong enough to fight against Killeria's power but too young for attacking her. At this time, he was only thirteen years old.

Currently, this incognito guy is working on his plan of revenge for his community.

Online Classes and Traditional Classes

Azzam Alfrhood
RW40

A class is a place to start your dream. Many people like to take classes with the best teacher, but sometimes they cannot do that because some classes are small, or they don't have time to take them. In some schools, people can take online classes. Although both types of classes are popular now, there are many differences and similarities between them.

First of all, both online classes and traditional classes are good ways to study for a degree. Some people work full time, and they take online classes because they need a higher degree for their jobs. For this purpose, people can achieve a higher degree in both ways and the effect is the same.

While online classes and traditional classes share certain similarities, they are very different in the time that a student needs to spend in going to classes. Some online classes can start any time during the day, but traditional classes must follow a schedule, and it has to start at a specific time. Traditional classes require a meeting place and supporting facilities, but online classes only require WIFI and PC, and thus are more convenient.

In conclusion, there are several significant similarities and differences between online classes and traditional classes. Both of them are good to learn a new subject. Now, you can study at any time and any place because you have many choices for your classes.

The Best Vacation

Abdulaziz Bn Juwed
RW20

I had the best vacation in Indonesia two years ago. First, I arrived in Jakarta the capital city of Indonesia and went to a hotel to rest because I had a flight to Bali next day. When I arrived in Bali, I spent the most of time with my wife there. We stayed a nice villa near the beach. In addition, we hired a private driver for transportation, and he did an excellent job. For example, he took us to beautiful forests, waterfalls, and a strawberry farm. Also, we could enjoy our beautiful time because there were many excellent restaurants and coffee shops. We liked Bali so much because it had a good nature view. We almost stayed for a week. After all of it, we came back to Jakarta, and we went shopping at the mall. Furthermore, we enjoyed at Dunia Fantasi, and it was a wonderful place. I hope to visit it again, so I absolutely recommend to my friends and other people to go there..

My Father

Abeer Alsulami

Two years ago, my life was perfect. I had a lot of graces I did not know about it until they were gone. I am the 7th child between 12 children, yes 12 children. My life was amazing, and what made my life great, what made it that good was my father. He gave us love and kindness and blessings. I was his love, he always tried to make me happy. And he gave me a lot of gifts, not because it was my birthday or a holiday, but just because he loved me.

One day I woke up and I found 11 missed calls from my brothers. I knew some thing bad happened. I called my oldest brother and asked him "What happened?" He told me my father was in a hospital and he was very sick. When I arrived to the hospital I found my father, my love, my soul, in the Intensive Care Unit. He looked very sick. His doctor came and told us: "Your father has had a lung fibrosis for 5 years. Now his lung almost does not work, there is only 35% of it left. He will use Oxygen cylinders in the rest of his life." I do not know how can I explain my feelings at that moment. I wished I was dreaming, but unfortunately I was not. My father did not tell us because he did not want us to worry about him. I was shocked, I did not believe he could not breathe, and that a lot of talk would make the Oxygen go down.

He did not live long after that. When they told me he died, I was like crazy, I did not want to believe them. I went to him to see him one last time. I promised him to not forget him for all my life, and I will not. Now I would give everything I have to get him back, but it will not happen.

I do not care if I win or not, because I would say to every one if your father still lives, do as much as you can to make him happy with you, because you will not know a true value for him until he passes away

The Main Reasons Of Most Accident

Adel Alluhayb
RW33

There is no doubt about the accident has grown each year. How many people of our close friends did we lose? Every year we hear scary numbers of how many people died in previous years in trouble accidents, and chiefly thing which is every body does not like hear about it. The first reason, which plays a significant role, is texting while driving. This means using the smartphones while driving, and not focusing in the street in front of you. With that you will be out of controlling your car. After that, unconsciously your car is going to deviate from the road, then sadness accident as a result for that wrong thing you did. The second reason is not having adequate sleeping. It is so dangerous for your self and other people around you. If you feel sleepy or you cannot continue being woken, you can take some rest. Do not try struggling or keep driving when you feel drowsy. The third reason is driving in a drunk case. Avoid that whatever. If you want to drink, you have to throw your keys to somewhere. In the end, the driving is not an easy thing as some people think. It is risky and you may pay your life as worth for your recklessness.

Social media is more popular today than ever and everyone now uses it from all ages. Social media has many beneficial effects. Did you ever have one of those days when you had to choose between to things that you want so badly? I think my most difficult choice I ever made is choosing between the job of my life, which was taking a job in oil company hospital back in Kuwait, the advantage for that job where very tempting offer, especially with high benefits, such as high monthly salary, a good health insurance, and other great benefits. The other choice was to take to accept the scholarship to go to study abroad, and that doesn't happen every day! Mainly it would mean I'd get to have a big opportunity to continue my education for free. However, I made up my mind, and choose to go for the scholarship option, it was the right decision to make that is because of two reasons. First of all, I will get a better education in my field; as a result I can achieve more great stuff. For example, I will be able to help patients more than before, because I will get more experience in my major, which is human nutrition. In addition, I will get more opportunity for better job, as we know a good certificate can play important role when you apply for a job. In the end, choosing to study abroad was right, and I am very pleased about making that decision.

Causes of Diabetes Type Two

Badreyah ALQallaf

Type two diabetes are a wide spread chronic disease these days. There are many common factors that can cause this type of diabetes. First, genetic factors play important role to trigger the activation of that disease. For example, for people who have diabetic history in the family, it will be easy to trigger that loaded gun, by eating unhealthy food, or having a bad lifestyle. Another factor is being physically inactive, as transportation has been easier and easier, people have been relying more on cars, motorcycles, and even elevator, so the activity level is decreasing over time. By doing exercise regularly, it will enhance the sugar level in the blood to be normal, and will reduce fat percentage in the body. Finally, diet disorders are one of the factors that causes diabetes, consuming large amounts of carbs, especially simple sugar that found mostly in soda, and sweets, will be associated with overweight and high blood sugar level and that could be directly related to one of the reasons of diabetes. In conclusion, factors causing diabetes type two disease are common these days, so people should be careful and avoid those factors to prevent diabetes.

A wise man once said "you do not need a lot of Friends, you just need the best friends, those friends with whom you can share everything and be yourself. When I arrive in Gainesville, I was very sad because I had to leave my friends and I thought that I will not find friends like them and I have to say that I was right because in Gainesville I found better friends than my old friends. Obviously, I cannot compare my old friends with my new friends because they are very different but I can describe my new friends. First, I have to say that they are from Venezuela, are incredibly different from many Venezuelans I know, they are Atenas Calzadilla y Daniel Landaez are some diamonds that I found my way and that keeps for life, because friends like them you only can find once in your life and if you lose you a lifetime regret.

First, before I met Atenas; I saw her walking in the University, on the bus, and in my apartment complex and casually she lived in the same place as me. I met her one day before my mom comes back to my country, when she introduced herself I was impressed with the confidence that she spoke. We can say that we made a connection, a very strong connection, and from that moment we became one. We started training together, walked everywhere together, we had lunch together, we did almost everything together, we did not realize how close we had become until I met her family by face time and she met mine. I was as if we had known forever, however, we come from different countries; we have many things in common, our histories are similar. People from ELI said that we were sister, in the background yes we are sisters. Our friendship was approved many times and I have to tell you that any failure each other. We were always sincere and if we realize something always talk to hear our opinions I know Atenas better than anyone in Gainesville.

After a few months I met Daniel, how I met him was strange, because I met him when Atenas and I rented a car for spring break (if you are reading Daniel I have to say that the first impression you gave me was funny in a good sense). At first, I did not talk much with him, but since then grabbed confidence we started to joke not like now, I have to admit. After that day, we did not speak a lot, until one day I see him enter in my RW class since that day we became closer than before. There is not a day that we are not laughing or joking, he is always in a good mood and ready to have fun. I learned many things from him, things like using words from Venezuela that Bolivians do not use it, I met more of his family, some secrets of his personal life, I met the real Daniel, together with him and Atenas made a much stronger connection. We are very different but at the same time we are equals. I must say that he become as a brother that I do not have. He always listen my crazy things, my nonsense also he is there to scold me for the stupid things I do. I know I can trust him in every way. But, sometimes he forced me to go with him to Winn Dixie because he does not like to go alone, and also because he knows that makes me laugh when he has to buy something that he does know about it.

Finally, together we are a family, the family that we need when we feel lonely, we give advice to each other, and we try to always get together. Although we will separate from eight months together I know that will always be my friends, and when I need them they will be there for me. Even though we are separated by a distance our friendship will be united by the same feeling. And I have to thank my parents for giving me the opportunity to fly and find friends, also I have to thank ELI to be my second home, here I met many people that I will never forget. Remember, you do not need too many friends just you need to have the best.

Pesticides: Controversial Support in Agriculture

Claudia Calorio
RW33

Pesticides are used all over the world, for support the food production, but there are pernicious effect in our body and environment. Majority of foods are produced with pesticides, in general, have dangerous residues, in these products and we eat that. Those residues behave our nervous system, because that there are several causes the suicides and depression on farmers. Another effect is physical, such as birth defects. Researchers identified residues from several pesticides into the breast milk, in 100% the women breastfeeding. These studies were made in Mato Grosso, Central region in Brazil, by UFMT (Federal University of Mato Grosso). The third issue, and not less important, were the contamination the soil and water. The same research demonstrated pesticides' residues in the artesian well and in rain water in all samples collected. The National Agency Sanitary Monitoring ANVISA (Agencia Nacional de Vigilancia Sanitaria) in Brazil demonstrated in an annual report which are the vegetables are contaminated and how many people, too. The National Institute of Geography and Statistics, IBGE (Instituto Brasileiro de Geografia e Estatistica) demonstrated growth of consumption in the country, and today is one the biggest of world. All this affects our lives, as we eat and as we drink, because of is necessary changes. In conclusion, measures should be taken by Governments and by society, all over the world, to reduce, gradually, the pesticide use, without affecting food production.

The Differences and Similarities between Arabic and English in Writing and Speaking

Faisal Alhumaidi
RW45

More than 60 countries around the world speak Arabic and English. There are many similarities and differences between Arabic and English. I speak both languages. In Kuwait we speak Arabic as a first language; however, English is used as a second language. In Kuwait we start to learn English in first grade in elementary school when we are 6 years old. Some schools start to teach English from Kindergarten. In addition, we use English in Kuwait in every government circle or any official paper. Also, we use English in tourist places. So that clearly shows how Kuwait uses English as a second language. I believe in order to speak English well; we need to begin from kindergarten. For short example, my nephew starts study English from kindergarten, now she speaks English fluently at middle school. I think to learn a second language from kindergarten will help students to understand and grow up with two languages. I started to learn English when I was in middle school and I didn't feel I was learning until I started from high school. When I was studying at university I just studied English like one subject; however, we didn't use English in any other subjects. That made studying English difficult for me. In 2009 I started to study English so I traveled to the United Kingdom for 3 months. I learned many things and my speaking became better than before. In 2010 I traveled to the United States to study English. Also I learned more than I learned when I was in the United Kingdom. I did that because I wanted to continue my study. People in Kuwait don't use English to converse with each other, but they use it in specific places. Many differences exist between Arabic and English like speaking and writing.

First, Arabic and English have many differences. The first difference between Arabic and English is speaking. Sounds are one of many parts of speaking. Some Arabic sounds don't exist in English and vice versa. For example, in Arabic if we want to say "عبد الله" "Abdullah" (common Arabic's name) the first letter of this name is "ع", this letter don't exist in English so they change it in English to "A". However, "أحمد" "Ahmed", also (common Arabic's name) the first letter of this name is "أ" equal in English "A". This letter is existent in English so they didn't change it. Another example, English has two letters "B" and "P". Arabic only has the letter "B". If we translate words from English to Arabic include "B" or "P" in that word, both "B" and "P" will be written as a "B". For example, "Patrick" and "Barack" the two first letter in those names "P" AND "B" existent in Arabic to "B" which is "ب" in Arabic. Same as the first example when we transferred two words include the two letters "ع" and "ا" to English, both of the letters use in English only "A". Arabic has 28 letters and English has 26 letters; however, some sounds of the letters don't exist from Arabic to English and vice versa. Many sounds in English are different when we say it because some letters will disappear. For example, when American English said "water" the "T" letter will disappear. For another example, in English, when they say "pleasure", the sound is different when they read it; in contrast, in Arabic there is no difference between your writing and reading, so what you say is exactly what you write. Another example, the words "dear" and "deer" are spelled differently but sound the same. Unlike Arabic each word has a different spelled and different sound. The syntax in Arabic differs from the syntax in English. The syntax in Arabic starts in this order: verb, subject and object or subject. Compared to Arabic, English is using this order: subject, verb and object. For example, English speaker said "Red car" on the contrary Arabic speaker said "Car red". Even if there are many differences between Arabic and English, there is some existing in some words between them.

Second, although Arabic and English are completely different with writing, Arabic and English use many words that have been taken from different languages like, French, Persian, Turkish and Latin. Many words in English already have been taken from Arabic and vice versa. For example, the word "Earth" is originally from Arabic and it has similar pronunciation. Arabic called this word "أرض" and it means "earth". Another word in English "Camera" also has Arabic origins. The original word in Arabic is "قمره". It means in English "the dark house", Latin translation as the "camera obscura". "Alhazen Ibn Al-Hyatham" whose invent camera's idea and he is Arabic scientific he called it that name. Furthermore, Arabic starts writing from right to left, in contrast English starts writing from left to right. While Arabic use cursive, English use printing (manuscript). Another difference, English dose use uppercase and lowercase, this is really essential in English with names, countries and the first word in a sentence, etc. for example: Melina, Kuwait. On the contrary, Arabic doesn't use the upper or lower cases, because all the words are the same height and the same font. Last thing to compare is punctuation, Arabic does use a points to differentiate between the letters. Sometimes the point is above the letter, and sometimes the point is below the letter. For example, this two Arabic letters - "ف" and "ق" they look similar but the points above each of them make that different, "ف" equal in English "F", and "ق" equal in English "Q". On the contrary English doesn't use this point with letters.

In conclusion, Arabic and English have many differences and I focused only on speaking and writing. Clearly we can remember many letters in English but there are many way to say it. That means, the way that the word is written can be different from the way the word is pronounced. However, in Arabic the word that you hear is the same what you read or write. Also in the writing both of them are different from where they start to write, letters style, space between the letters and some point above or below the letters. In my opinion, Arabic and English have strong basics, and to understand the differences we need to go in deep to look at both of them. I hope this simple highlighted comparison about differences between Arabic and English, will help you to find this information useful. I recommend who interested to read more about the differences between those two languages.

Saudi Arabia

Faisal Alkhulayfi
RW33

In Saudi Arabia they are so happy because they have many reasons to make them happy and I will tell you two reasons. First of all, there we have security so you can go where you want any time. You can't be afraid from any thing because you have the police to protect you. Sometimes there some people afraid to go outside at 3:00 AM to eat or to go to his friends. I don't know why they are afraid if you have police. Every time when we think about that we are grateful to the God. On the other hand, they have work for any one you can find the job if you want just study hard and heat your major then you can find the job it is easy to find it. For example, some people when you ask them about the job he will tell you that you can't find any job in Saudi Arabia, but that is not true. If you look for this man you will find him: he does not study and he does not search for any job. He just waits for someone to call him and tell him, "come on I want you to warm with me by this step." You will not find any job in any countries in the world. In the end, they are so happy because that have this reasons.

B Protect Dogs in Haiti

Jisette Letelier
RW52

At the beginning of the world, a beautiful creature was designed; this is the animal, which has two specific groups: human being and pets. The only one principal trait that differs between them is that the first one is be able to reason and to be rational (when he really wants, of course!) whereas the second one cannot. However, human and pets have to share this planet and to collaborate as much as possible, for all your life. Nevertheless, if it is true that most people love pets and like taking care of them, sometimes the life of pets is threatened by human in some countries. This is the reality of dogs in Haiti. More than ever, it is time to devote our actions in this significant case and ensure a better life for dogs in this country.

First of all, it is important to notice that roughly 99% of families in Haiti have at least one dog. Mostly, when people have dog it is not necessary to take care of them at first. Usually, they have a dog because they want to protect their house or for people who are living in rural areas, their farm and others livestock (chicken, sheep, commodities, etc...). This is not the principal problem because some kind of dogs such as, Pit-bull and Rottweiler, are trained for that activity. The inconvenience with this situation is specifically when people neglect to give them all they need and to control regularly their health. So, the dogs in order to survive, need to find their food themselves by going in the streets, open markets and sometimes, other houses in their neighborhood. This situation represents a significant danger for the dogs; they can lose their way therefore, their house forever, they can be beaten and bitten by other dogs and sometimes, they can be poisoned by other malicious people.

Expel the natural, it returns quickly

Jisette Letelier
RW52

Another type of problem that some dogs are facing in Haiti is that some people just give them up when they do not need them, do not like them anymore; sometimes people can drop them when they are angry against something that they did or when they are sick and need a little bit more money as usual for their treatment. Because of this, it is possible to find some dogs in the streets every day. They are living alone without a family. If someone else doesn't take them, they can be killed when they try to cross the streets or when they are really sick.

For all these issues which dogs are confronted to, here is time to initiate some real and effective actions in this country for stopping this unbelievable phenomenon. In this process, both Haitian authorities and simple citizen have important responsibilities. About the authorities, it would be necessary to update, ratify and promulgate the law related to the protection of pets specifically the protection of dogs. In addition to this actualization, it is unmissable that the law be applied all over the country. Furthermore, it is relevant to the government to create a specific department whose functions will be to protect animals, to educate the population about this; also, the government have to open some animal shelters which can help lost and abandoned dogs.

In addition, citizen can contribute to the protection of dogs by realizing some simple actions which can spread happiness to dogs. For example, a wise behavior is to having dogs only when they are sure they can take really care of them. As it is usual to say in the wedding, people have to be sure that they will be there for the dogs they want to take, in the good and bad moments, for the best and for the worse. Moreover, it is really important that people protect even the dogs that are not yours. For example, when people see them in the streets, they should not threaten them or kill them when they are crossing the streets in front of their cars. Volunteering in some activities devoted to protect and helping dogs could be an excellent initiative from the community.

In conclusion, the situation of many dogs in Haiti is very critical. Every day, their life is threatened and every day they become more vulnerable. It is inadmissible that this problematic persists. As a part of solution, the Haitian authorities have to take their responsibilities and assume perfectly their role. In the other side, the community has to contribute as much as possible to protect dogs by respecting their rights and by ensuring the satisfaction of their needs. Remember, dogs are the best friends of human; they love us, they are always there where and when we need; give us them back this affection and this protection. Hopefully, their life will be better and longer than ever.

Today, I want to talk about Jane and Peter families' story because this is one that nobody in their family could have predicted. However, life is a continuous surprise most of the time, that's why it is always amazing.

First, let's begin with Jane's profile. Since her young age, Jane suffered from bulimia. Everyone believes that this psychological issue stems from the death of the first and last dog that she ever had. Despite all efforts and support of her parents, Jane never changed. In addition to eating a lot, she is known in her family as a lazy and disorganized person who always tried to use the short way for everything that she has to do. That's why she always ordered food from restaurants or ate frozen dishes instead of learning how to cook. When she did not eat junk foods, her favorite menu was roasted beef or beef barbecue, fried potatoes and pasta salad. Liz, Jane's sister, was always worried about the eating style of her sister and as a drastic resolution, she decided to find her a man who should have a contradict profile with Jane. So, she decided to take a look at "vegetarianharmony.com", which is a dating website for vegetarians. There, she found Peter!

As a vegetarianharmony.com member, Peter's profile is far different to Jane's. He is a healthy man who always eats more than five fruits and vegetables a day and has never tasted meat in his entire life. The point is, he was born in a strict vegetarian family; so he is very used to not eating meat and junk food. In addition to being a vegetarian and Christian man, Peter is a very kind, respectful and organized person. That's why everyone likes him. After two weeks of interesting conversations with Peter, Liz decided to set up a blind date between Peter and her sister. The result of the first date was not a surprise for anyone who knows both guys. Peter was shocked and disappointed about Jane's habits and said he would never call her back. On the other side, Jane was angry against her sister and said this date was a big mistake. However, after sleeping on it, Jane decided to make a little bit of change in her life and to keep in touch with Peter. In parallel, Peter thought the same thing while drinking his veggie 8 morning juice; he said "after all, Jane seemed to be a good person... probably, I can influence her in a good way..."

Since this day, Peter and Jane became adorably inseparable and ...different. Falling in love to Peter, Jane started introducing some vegetables in her menu every day and tried to become less disorganized. Moreover, in order to please Jane, Peter started eating mussels. Now, he is just used to eating seafood! This is the love mystery result!

After one year of their relationship, Peter and Jane got married! They really love each other and want to stay together forever. Nevertheless, although Jane has become more organized and Peter still eats mussels sometimes, there is only one snag in this lovely couple: Jane cannot get rid of junk and frozen food. On the other hand, Peter doesn't want to give up his healthy vegetarian style. Therefore, because their love is the most important, they decided not to interfere in their partner's eating style. That's why there are two refrigerators in their house: one for Jane food and one for Peter food. Freedom for all and the love increases safely!

My Favorite Vacation

The best vacation I ever had was to Egypt eight years ago with my family. We went by the ship. First, we landed in AL Gherdakhe and spent three beautiful days. We enjoyed the beach and a restaurant. Then we went to Cairo where the capital of Egypt. It was a wonderful city. After we rested, we took a tour in the City. We next visited the Pyramids. It was the most beautiful I have ever seen. We loved Egypt because the people there were nice and fun, and there were a lot of places to spend a good time. Finally, we traveled to AL Gherdakhhe, and we spent more days there. After a long journey, we traveled back to SAUDI. Until now, I wish to go back to EGYPT soon.

From English to Arabic

Mohammed Almatar
RW45

Did you ever study any language different from your official language? A lot of people decide to study another language for different reasons. Some of them study it because they want to communicate with people who don't speak their native language. Another people study another language because they want to challenge themselves by studying hard language. And the other people, just like me, are studying another language because they are planning to study in another country whose official language is different from their languages. I am an Arabic native speaker; however, I am studying English because I am planning to complete my education in it. Since I start studying, I knew that I am going to find a lot of hard problem during my studying trip. English is different from Arabic in term of the grammar, the popularity, and the famous exams to test your language.

First, English and Arabic are very different in their grammar. In English, we always use a specific order to make a sentence (subject then verb then object). For example, we say "Mohammed ate the apple." In contrast, In Arabic, we could use the same order; however, we can also start with verb in our sentences. For example, we can say "ate Mohammed the apple." Also, they are different In the order of the noun and adjectives. In Arabic, we always use the adjectives after the noun. So when we describe a car with a red color, in Arabic the sentence will be "This is car red." Instead, adjectives are always come before the nouns so when they describe the same car they are going to us this sentence "This is a red car." Furthermore, Unlike English, who use the same word (you) with the second person of the conversation either if the second Pearson is a singular or plural, Arabic are very specific in term of the number of people as a second parson in the conversation. Arabic has a different word for if the addressee is only one Pearson, if they are two, or if they are more than two. These differences make some people feel it's hard to study another language but it become easier by practice.

In addition, although English and Arabic both are very famous, the rank of them is very different in term of their popularity. One of the most important reasons for this difference is the reasons of people to study each language. Most countries whose official language in it is English has a very good Universities and colleges, so a lot of people are studying English to study in these countries. By the time people started to study English on their countries to get more ready to study abroad. After that, English became the language with rank one in the world because most governments started to add English as a one of the materials that you are required to study in your school. As a result, people become studying English more to communicate with people from a different Native languages because the English is the language that usually in common between them. Furthermore, people need to understand English to use the technology whose official language became always English. In contrast, Arabic is a religion language, so the usual reason for people to study Arabic is that they are interested in Islam so they learn the language to make it easy to study the religion. Another reason to study English according to some American people who study Arabic that they are challenge their selves! They believe that Arabic is really hard language to study so they are challenge their selves to see if they can do something hard like this. These two reasons aren't enough to raise the rank a lot because it's not that much common for people to change their religion or to challenge their selves by studying hard language

Finally, English and Arabic are different in term of the famous language test. Testing your current ability of language is very important, it helps you to know how your language is doing and know your power points and weakness point in your languages. In English, there are two famous test. First one names TOEFL; this test made in the USA and it helps you to know your rank in the skills reading, writing, listening, and speaking; it is taken by the computer. The other one names IELTS from United Kingdom. It's taken without computer so you are going to write by pen and speak with real people. It gives you your rank in the skills reading, writing, listening, speaking and grammar. On the contrary, Arabic has no any famous test that you can take it anyway. However, there are some local test in some countries to test your Arabic language. For example, in Saudi Arabia we have an exam named Qias or Qodarat. This exam is not only test Arabic language; however, it has a lot of question about the language (Arabic). Unfortunately, it doesn't test any skill except the grammar. That means that you can't know how your pronunciation or your writing skills are doing by this test.

In summary, Arabic and English has a lot of differences such as grammar, the popularity, and the famous tests to assess. Grammar in English has specific order for the sentences such as start the sentence with noun and use the adjectives before nouns while Arabic speakers can start their sentences by verb in addition to start them by nouns and they always use nouns before the adjectives. Also, the reasons of people to study Arabic is usually because they want to study the Islamic religion or to challenge their selves by studying hard language and that's different from the reasons for people to study English such as to studying in some countries whose official language is English or to communicate with people from different countries by English as a language in common. Unlike Arabic, English has some famous test to assess your ability in English according for all the main skills of the languages. In my opinion, studying any new language is hard in the beginning; however, when you start to see your development, you are going to love it and feel it became easier.

Pollution

Moutakabir Bakari
RW33

Pollution is a bad thing for the environment and us, and there are 3 main causes of this phenomenon. The first one is to use gasoline. It's good for automobiles but very bad for the environment. It pollutes the air that we breathe. For example, good when the engine use gasoline because the car is faster, but it makes one kind of smoke, CO2, which is very bad and causes a lot of damage. Another type of pollution is smoking. Smoking cigarettes pollutes also the air and it's not good for the person who smokes and all of people who are around him. Also, using plastics bags are not good in cases where when you finish to use it to bury it in a dump, because when you do that it pollutes the Earth and stops fertility of the Earth and prevents growing of plants. Finally, pollution is very bad, because it limits and kills nature, the best thing we have in the world, and so it is good that UF prohibits smoking on campus because it's not good for environment or for us.

As family, friends are important in our life; friends are the family that we choose. On the other hand, you can choose your family to be your friends. Thus, I consider my sister my best friend for many reasons. First of all, my sister is good at giving me advice. She has known me since the beginning. If I need to talk to someone, I know that she will be there for me. Another important quality of my sister is her intelligence. I grew up with her, and in all my life she has always been teaching me how to be better; she helped me with my homework when I was a child, she taught me English, math, and cooking too. Then last, but not least, my sister is trustworthy. I know that, because when I tell her something, I can trust that she will not say anything to anyone. If I want to do something, or if I already did it, she always knows it. All in all, my sister is my best friend because she is intelligent, trustworthy, and gives good advice. I cannot imagine my life without her. If you meet her, you will understand what I mean.

The Two Memorable Teachers

Shada Alfagih
RW 43

Everyone had gone to a school to learn, and for sure everyone had faced some teachers who were bad and some who were great. I had great experience with two teachers who were considered the best. The two memorable teachers are great, even though there are some differences between them. They are the grammar teacher and the art teacher.

One of the most important differences is in their personality. The grammar teacher is very kind and talks to everyone she meets. She doesn't sit in her office after finishing her classes, she likes to walk around and talk to people. On the other hand, the art teacher is very serious and doesn't like to communicate. She likes to be alone all the time, doing her work, making projects, or preparing for the class.

They are also different in the availability. Although the grammar teacher is very kind, she is not available by the end of school. She likes to help people, but she also likes to give everything a specific time; for example, time for school, or her job, when she has to do everything related to school, and time for her house and family. However, the art teacher is available any time. If a student has a problem doing something, she could ask her to help in her office, after school, or during the weekend.

The last aspect in which they differ in is their teaching methods. The grammar teacher uses traditional methods. Even though the school has modern technology, she prefers to teach by the traditional way. She thinks that the modern methods are not useful and they are for children. However, the art teacher likes to use modern teaching methods. She prepares for the class with something new because she thinks that will refresh the class and make students understand better.

To conclude, both of the two teachers are perfect. They are both valuable resources for the school, even if there are differences between them. The grammar teacher is lovely for her personality of being sociable, whereas the art teacher is most popular and known for her effective teaching methods which fit with the current generation. In my opinion, both of them are remarkable, and they are both still memorable with the differences between them. They made me great with my studying skills, and I'll remember them all of my life.

The Difference Between Online and Traditional Classes

Abdulmajjid Alrashidy
RW 40

What is the difference between online and traditional classes? There were no online classes many years ago when only traditional classes were available. In 1873, correspondence study began (the universities send the lecture by mail to the students); after that in 1970, some universities used other ways to teach such as TV, radio and video. On the other hand, online classes have been popular since 1980. While both are now widely available, they are different in a lot of things. These important differences are in cost, time and quality.

Money is very important to people who need to study. Poor people cannot study because studying requires a lot of money. Recently, the people who have limited income can study through online classes. Traditional classes require a lot of things that help you to study, such as lodging, school tools and transportation and all these cost money. However, online classes only require tuition fees. Also, online fees are usually cheaper than traditional classes.

Because of affordability, online classes are becoming more and more popular.

Time is most precious in our life. Traditional classes take up more time, while online classes take up less. You have less flexibility in controlling your attendance in traditional classes. Nevertheless, you can do that with online classes. With traditional classes, we lose more time in transportation, whereas with online classes, we save our time by staying home to take the class. In Traditional classes, we must attend our classes at specific times, but we can attend our online classes at any time. This flexibility in time allows working people who are studying at the same time a better chance to finish their studies.

The quality of teaching and learning is very important for a student to be successful in the future. Traditional classes are, in my opinion, more effective than online classes. Students get many skills in traditional classes such as discussion, presentation and other activities. In traditional classes, students get knowledge from the teacher's experience, which may not be included in the classes' lectures. Through personal contacts, a student can learn these valuable experiences of the teachers, but they may not have the same opportunity to do so in online classes.

Generally, study is expensive, and poor people cannot pay school fees. Every person studies as he wants, and that depends on the conditions of life. Some people choose online classes because they do not have time to go to school. They use the time to both work and study. Online classes are lower in quality than traditional classes. So, each of them has both advantages and disadvantages, but I prefer traditional classes because they give me the opportunity to learn more skills.

The Causes of Bad Health

Naif Aldakhil
RW41

Health is the state of being free from illness or injury. It is related to happiness, long life, and a good body. Health is necessity for all the living things. No one can live a long time without being healthy; however, there are main issues that cause bad health around the world.

The first issue that causes bad health is the environmental issues. One of them is air pollution; it increases the possibility of people getting asthma and that causes bad health. For example, in China, the large number of factories emit smokes that hurt the human body. Another issue is nuclear weapons causing bad health. For example, in the well-known case in history, Hiroshima, the people living there still have many diseases as a result of the nuclear bombing.

The second issue that contributes to bad health is bad habits. Nowadays, eating fast food is one of the most common bad habit. Many studies have proved that eating fast food causes bad health.

Also, a second bad habit is video games. It causes addiction in a child or teenager and they would sit for many hours. It is not a secret that playing video games for many hours can damage one's eye sight.

Last but not least, Poverty can cause bad health. Poverty can cause bad health in many ways. First, because the people cannot afford the medicine, having this huge issue in any place can increase the incidents of diseases. Second, due to poverty, people eat bad food and that leads to bad health. As a result, poor countries are always plagued by disease and health issues.

To sum up, bad health comes from certain causes: environmental issues, bad habits, and poverty. In my opinion, focusing on solving these main issues can lead us to a better future. All of these problems came from the human decisions, so by the human decisions we can prevent them.

My Favorite City

Wael Dugdugi

Jazan is my favourite city. Jazan is my home town and my best place in my life. It is a wonderful city where located in the south west Saudi Arabia. It has many views in natural location as higher mountains are around the city (clean water). Also, there are often rare trees in the mountains; so many people come on weekends or in the summer as their vacation. In addition, it is an academic and culture city. There is one of biggest universities in my city although it is a small city. Also, it was settled one of older civilization in Jazan such as stone ages and middle ages. There are a lot of antiquities in the museums until today. Also, it is a beautiful and quite city. There are some activities could be enjoying like cursers, fishing, and barbeque. It has a quiet atmosphere. When you are in this city, you will be comfortable without any noise and crowded. In fact, it is a lovely city, so it is an important city in my country. Therefore, Jazan city is my the best place in my life.

Education System

Yaye Hamidou Badjo

Education is a wonderful way to fight ignorance. Also, it is different from one country to another. The education system of my home, which is situated in Western Africa, has more differences with the system here in Gainesville, despite having a few similarities. The similarity is that the both have a break at the last weeks of December, and March. However in my country, the academic year is counted by whole year, while here people think by semester. That means, we have only chance to begin classes, and here you can begin class at any semester you want. Also, in Gainesville each semester is shared in two parts B and C; something that does not exist in my home. In the same way, you cannot drop your classes in my home, but here it is possible. Not only these, the differences come from the teaching and evaluation. In my home, the teaching before coming in Gainesville, I thought it is one of the best in the world. Once here, I do not think so. In Gainesville, it seems like you learn while having fun. Thus, the notes of teaches are always positive. These are the opposite of my home, of course they give suggestion, but you cannot have fun. You must concentrate and be strict in your classes. Concerning the evaluation, we have some differences also. In my home, it is difficult to see a teacher giving homework. If that happened, it means that the last exam many students failed. That kind of homework, some students call it "God gift". Then, in Gainesville, teachers like giving homework, which I think is better. Also, before each of the exams, we do some review even if we did some in class. Also, teachers smile always, whereas, in my country, during the exam the teachers do not laugh. In conclusion, the education system in Gainesville instead to say Florida State or all U.S, is better what I experienced before.

Study Abroad

Mohammed Alhindi

Imagine the impact of studying abroad is that what I am about to write about it. When I was a kid, I had a big dream just like any kid's dream to be a doctor or a pilot. This dream became bigger. The dream is full of difficulties and challenges to achieve. I saw the dream every moment in my life as fact. My parent and siblings encourage me to achieve that dream. When I started high school, my father told me that if I wanted to study in another country, you had to work as much as I could because I was going to make a major decision in my life. For that reason, I studied so harder to achieve my biggest dream. In 2013, I graduated from the University of Alqssim. After that, I had to make the strongest decision. I decided to study abroad for several reasons.

The first reason is to achieve my dream. Everyone has a dream in their life. They have to fight for their dream to come true. My dream is to get a higher in accounting from the US. For that reason, I study as much as I can to achieve my dream. Every member of my family encouraged me to study abroad. Consequently, I came to US to study in the best University as soon as possible. At present, I have been studying English since May 2014 because I want to get high grade in Ielts exam. In the other hand, I decided to get higher Education in accounting from the US for several reasons. Firstly, the 20 best world universities are located in America. Secondly, there are so many education options in US. Finally, getting a higher education in accounting from the US is going to create several chances to get the best job in Saudi Arabia. The first step of my dream is getting 6.5 in IELTS exam. The second step gets admission to the best university in US.

The second reason is to learn a new language. If you want to be successful in your life, you should learn a new language. First of all, I am studying a new language, due to my need to communicate with other people from around the world. For example, when I met my roommate that is from Japan for the first time, it was hard to communicate with him. As present, I speak English very well. As result. It easier to communicate with people from another country. This is the most interesting experience I have had through my life. Most people enjoy communicating with people from another countries and make friends from around the world. First of all, I am learning the universal language English. Due to my need to get the best job in Saudi Arabia. For instance, most companies ask workers who speaks English very well. For that reason, speaking English is going to create opportunities to get job and open a lot of door. Furthermore, it is going to help me if I travel around the world.

The third reason is to learn a new culture. When you study in another country such as the US, you are going to meet plenty of people from several countries. For example, I learned that Thanksgiving is the most amazing holiday in US. Most American people celebrate this holiday to thank God for the food that God gives us. Furthermore, I learned the most significant aspect from various country which is the greeting. For example, In Europe people touch each other when meeting if the person is a friend or a member of the family and often give a quick kiss or hug. In Japanese and Korean cultures, they put their hand together and bow their face. In the United States, they smile and say hi to each other; sometimes they do shake hand.

Last but not least, the most important reason is personal development. Studying is going to give me ability to change myself to the best. Studying abroad improves several skills in my life. For example, I left my family two years ago and I arrived in another country to get a chance to become someone else. First of all, studying abroad has improved my style of study. For example, when I was in Saudi Arabia, I did not have schedule to study, which had huge impact in my life. I did not organize my time. At present, I study so much harder to achieve my dream. I organize my time to study more and more. The most important skill that has been improving is reading. By reading a lot, I can achieve whatever I want. Reading a lot makes my brain stronger. Moreover, it creates opportunity and open door to achieve whatever I dream about it. Reading move the brain from darkness to lightness. For instance, I go to the Library West every day and I read different topics that increase my knowledge and improve my experience.

As you can see, I decided to study abroad for several reasons: to learn a new language, to achieve my dream, to learn new culture, and develop personally. Studying abroad had a huge impact on my life which is a degree getting a higher degree, meeting awesome friends, and broadening my knowledge. I strongly suggest that most student study in another country such as the US. Studying abroad is going to lead them to travel around the world and make new friends. Moreover, studying abroad is going to cause their minds to be open mind, which is going to lead them to have wonderful experiences about culture and religion. Furthermore, when students return to their countries, they are going to develop their own country by the creative ideas that brought back.

The Conquest of a New Language, A Trip Over the World – An Excerpt

Espoir Exauce Ndandou
AIE

Since I was a child, I was always motivated by the perception that a trip upon the world would make me change positively, not necessarily because I am bad and cannot live peacefully without this change, rather, because I am truly convinced that everyone needs to know himself and to know others. In the same way, it is essential to let others know you. The reason why I think that this is fundamental is that oneself does not totally know itself. Furthermore, as we may realize it, the feeling that oneself knows better itself is indeed a blind ignorance of oneself, because beyond our convictions, our real face is always given to the view of others who are well placed to tell us who we are, and through them, just like a mirror, we see ourselves. We need that reflect of ourselves through others. By trip upon the world, I do not mean that everybody should travel all over the world to know himself or herself, but instead, what should be substantially keep in my mind is the fact that this knowledge of oneself needs us to move, to get into a new place, a new environment which fits properly with your need to discover more that you already know. As such, being with new people who are likely to be a great part of your learning and who can influence your life, is an efficient way to get into another place and to bring the change expected, even abstractly, as long as those people make your environment changed positively, your mind moves up and opens itself. This is being at a point where nothing does not remain stable, everything evolves because your goals are vigorously pushing you to other stations and you are already disposed to a change. I personally wanted to renew my environment by meeting people from other languages; staying closely confined in myself would not have helped me to reach that goal. Therefore, this trip which only means getting outside of yourself and discover others, can be abstract if you find those people in your original area and learn from them, or concrete if opportunities lead you to make a real trip over the world. Let's look a little back to what was my starting point. As I previously stated, I have always had a motivation in discovering the world and others, and for me, learning a new language was the first step to complete. At first glance, this is a cultural quest in which I committed myself. My choice was seemingly embarrassing due to the multiplicity of languages between which it had to be made. Likely, my envy of diversity was unimaginably high that I could not wait yet more, but reasonably, I could not either obtain everything at the same time; then, I decided to learn English first. Following the rhythm of globalization, it can be clearly seen how fast some languages are growing and covering predominantly many geographic areas in the world. For instance, English is one these languages whose progress is spectacularly thrilling and influencing; it is also deemed to be the first language spoken internationally. All these details have influenced my choice of English. Once my choice was made, my mind could enjoy to be released of the burden of an embarrassing choice, and I could then get on my way toward multiculturalism and knowledge of myself. However, the looking of opportunities to travel was another issue. Far from considering that my original area could not provide me the training that I wanted to receive, my position was to believe that the change I was looking for would not be as effective as if it was made far from my common area, habits and people who I used to share my daily share with. Before getting outside of the country, even during the time I was impatiently waiting for any opportunity to reach my destination, I was still feeling myself to be in a dilemma, regarding the fact that I owe the greatest part of my life to where I am from, that is where everything got started and I do have to recognize it. Although it was a hard decision, I had to make it and I know above all that no goal, no ambition can make me forget the memory of my past, yet less, the love that I solidly bear for my family, my country and people who have always been nicely living with me, because this is what my whole life is made of. For the reason aforementioned, I had to conciliate both my love for my original area and the necessity to leave it for another destination in favor of my ambition. Honestly, when I lastly got an opportunity to go, I could peacefully leave my family and everything back home, my head up and my regard perpetually turned towards new horizons. The first step was bravely completed because I had to live far away from the dearest people that I have in my life. As a matter of fact, this is a sad event, even when you try to think that your conscience have already been prepared to it, emotions and all souvenirs of your time over there, usually overweight upon your courage to afford your destiny, but this also the time when everything gets into your hands and you just have to be strong and keep going.

Bolivia And Its Change

Bruno Boehme Duran
RW 45

Did you know that Bolivia now is a communist country? if you don't know, ill explain you. Bolivia now is a communist country like many others countries in South america, and this for many people its really good, but for the people that have a big industries and the people that want the progress of the country and think in it, it's totally terrible, because we know that the countries of have communist governments, start with living like the revolution, the end of the external industries and the equality for all the people, but we know the reality of the things, that in the final the country it will be down in every way. In 2006 happened this big change in Bolivia, the people decided elect Evo Morales and his communist party to govern this country, Bolivia before this change was a democracy country. Now Bolivia change with this new communist government in many ways like the economy, education and the rules that support the human rights. The majority of this changes are really really bad, but some of these are not bad.

First of all, before Bolivia became communist country, it had a really different economy than now. One of the most important problems about the economy is the new law about the export and import. this law prohibit the export of the product made, grown, and raised in Bolivia. For example, in 2004 Bolivia exported 400.000 tons of soy and that produced a gain of 1666 millions of dollars, but in 2006 with the new laws and new restrictions, Bolivia exported only 100.000 tons and lost the 68 percent of gains. Other important problem was the nacionalizacion of the transnational companies and industries. For example, in 2003 Bolivia was one of the biggest producers of gas in South America. We had business with Brazil, Argentina and Chile, but when this new government took control of Petrobras (Petrobras is a petrol and gas industry from Brazil) we lost the business that we had with Argentina and Chile. Another problem about the economy was the reduction of land to cattle ranchers. For example, in 2004 the cattle ranchers could have the amount of land they were purchased and they can provided employment for a large percentage of people, but in 2009 decided reduce the amount of land, and this produced a lot of unemployment in the rural part of the country. This change of our economy did the lost of the 32 percent of our annual production.

Another difference is that Bolivia before this big change had a completely different kind of education than now. the first problem about the education was the change of international education policy for a new national education regime. For example, before this change Bolivia had an education directed by the educational programs from the IES (International Education System), and we had a really good grades in general, but now with this new programs of education called "Avelino Siñani-Elizardo Perez" many of our students are leaving school for the educational problems that this new program produce. Other serious problem is the financial funds that bolivia allocated for education before the change and after it. For example, before the change of government Bolivia allocated 15 percent of the national financial funds in education, but now Bolivia only allocate 9 percent of the national financial funds in education. we know that before this change Bolivia had better infrastructure in schools and better quality education than now. The last problem about the education in bolivia, Is the change of the second language in the public schools. For example, Bolivia before of this new communist government, had a program that teach english for second language in public school, but when this new government was elected, it decided to change this program for a new program that teach native language. Before this drastic changes in our education, Bolivia were one of the countries that were in the top 5 of the countries that have the best education in South America, but now we are the one of the worst in education of South America.

The last difference produced for the change of governments was the changes of the international relation that bolivia had. Bolivia when had a democracy government, it had petrol and gas business with powerful countries in South America like Brazil and Argentina, but now with this new government one of first changes was break relation and business about petrol with the countries in all the South America (except Venezuela). For example, in 2004 Bolivia did business for 14.192,23 barrels of petrol, but in 2012 with this news business with venezuela, bolivia only could business for 9.881.08 barrels, with this new kind of business, bolivia lost 38 percent of its production. Other important changes that was good for the country, was made new relations with global organization that support developing countries. For example, Bolivia before this government don't have internacional relation with organizations that support developing countries, but now bolivia have new relations with organizations like IDA(International Development Association),IDB (Interamerican Development Bank), and UNIDO (United Nations for Industrial Development). One of the last change about the international relation, was the new relations with one organization called “Cumbre G77” that work helping the relations between countries. For example, when Bolivia was a democracy country the couldn't participate in this organization before. This news relation was in some ways good and in some ways really bad for Bolivia.

To sum up, compared the economy of Bolivia before the change of government, the economy was better than now, for the supported of the Agriculture and Agronomy. Also Bolivia lost many of its incomes in the lost of the transnational industries. In the education, ,many people say that Bolivia now is worse than the last years for the changes of its method of education, and about international relations, Bolivia now in some ways it be good and in some ways it be really bad for lost the relations with the powerful countries.In my opinion, Bolivia now is living one of the worst government that it could have in all its history.
