St. Petersburg

A day of fun in St. Petersburg, Florida!
There is a lot to do in St. Pete, including visiting an aquarium, the Salvador Dali museum, the beach, shopping and much more! We will decide which activities to do on Saturday.

WHEN:
Saturday, July 18th. We will meet at the Norman Garage at 9am. Our return time will depend on how long we want to spend in St. Pete. The latest we will return to Gainesville will be 10:30 PM.

WHAT TO BRING:
A bathing suit and a towel
Water
A picnic lunch or money for lunch and shopping (if you like)
A change of clothes
SUNBLOCK!!

Grammar

Q: What is the most common exclamation for Americans in each emotion? When do they say it?
For example:
Surprise -> Really?
Shock -> Oh, my God!
Amazement -> Wow!
Anger -> Sh__: (You know)

A: Your question is difficult to answer completely, mainly because there are so many variations, even regionally (and according to audience), as to how we express strong emotion.

Those are all good, really, though that last one by itself is more commonly used for sudden pain or clumsiness, such as situations when you hit yourself on the finger with a hammer or you drop your glass of cola all over the white carpet—and that one is very dependent on your audience. It’s not something that most of us would say in front of our grandmothers, for example. Also, the use of “God”, as in your shock example, is considered to be possibly offensive to some people—be careful about using that one, too!

This is a good time to mention that you might want to ask your Language Assistants in your Listening/Speaking classes about the Curse Words Activity, as well as about other idioms that we use when we want to express strong emotions!

Q: “If I were a child, I would read a lot of books.” In this example, why isn’t it, “If I was a child…”?

A: This is an unreal conditional. That is, in this statement, you’re not now a child, so that’s an unreal situation. In an unreal present/future conditional, we use what is called the past subjunctive in the “if” clause. In every verb but one, that looks exactly the same as the simple past. The exception is the verb “to be”, in which case we use only the “were” form. It reads the same way no matter what the subject is, including “I” and “he/she/it”. So, you would also say, “If he were a child…” the same way.

Manners and Culture

Q: What are the traditional foods in the US?

A: There’s no one really good answer. The US is made up of many different regions, each with its own foods and customs. Mainly, you will find that hamburgers are favorites around the country, and the formerly Southern specialty fried chicken is really popular, too. In the Northeast, seafood is very popular. In the South, heavy fried foods, vegetables cooked in fat, and biscuits are the norm. In the Midwest, corn is probably the most ubiquitous food. In Texas and the Southwest, it’s beef and northern Mexican spices. And in the Pacific Northwest, Salmon is very popular. Generally, you will find that most Americans have bread and potatoes as their starches, but there are variations on that, too!

Quote of the Week

The easiest thing in the world to be is you. The most difficult thing to be is what other people want you to be. Don’t let them put you in that position.
